(14) Inter-District School Choice

The Connecticut Public Choice Program is designed to ensure that every child can achieve at the highest level while valuing their, “unique abilities, talents, interests, learning styles and background. No one single curriculum, educational model or pedagogy is best for all students rather, each district must consider a combination which is tailored to meet individual strengths and talents.” (Connecticut State Board of Education 1988)

The Suffield Public School System is committed to developing programs internally and seeking out programs externally that will allow students to find educational experiences that are challenging and appropriate to their needs. To this end, the Suffield Board of Education supports within its budget limitation, the Public School Choice Program as established by the Connecticut State Board of Education.
